What is meant by FCNR (B) Account ?

Key Aspects of FCNR (B) Accounts:

- Foreign Currency Holding: Deposits are held in freely convertible foreign currencies, such as USD, GBP, EUR, CAD, AUD, and Japanese Yen, rather than being converted into INR.
- Tax-Free Income: Interest earned on FCNR (B) deposits is exempt from income tax in India.
- Fully Repatriable: Both the principal amount and interest earned are fully repatriable, allowing them to be sent back abroad without restriction.
- Term Deposit Structure: These are essentially fixed deposits (term deposits) with maturities ranging from 1 to 5 years.
- Protection Against Fluctuations: Since the funds are maintained in foreign currency, depositors do not face currency risk from fluctuations in the Indian Rupee's value.
- Eligibility: Only eligible NRIs and PIOs can open these accounts, either individually or jointly with other NRIs. ICICI Bank +6

FCNR (B) accounts are an effective way for NRIs to save in their home country while keeping the funds in foreign currency, eliminating the risk of INR depreciation upon maturity. According to and, FCNR (A) accounts were replaced by FCNR (B) accounts in 1993. DBS Bank +4
